ontents / Commissioner's / Directorate / Prison Without / Prison Without / Changi Women's Prison / Accurate Assessment, / Correctional / Synergies Through / The Yellow Ribbon / Statistics / Alma Foreword / Members / Guards / Walls / to Institution A4 / Right Rehabilitation / Practices / Community Partnerships / Project / Statistics / Alma

▲ PROVIDING THE RIGHT REHABILITATION IN SPS

In SPS, we provide inmates different regimes and programmes based on their specific risks and needs, which is in line with international best practice on offender assessment and rehabilitation.

Programmes such as the Enhanced Drug Rehabilitation Regime and revised Reformative Training Regime have specific assessments, processes, and programming that cater to the specialised rehabilitation needs of drug and youth offenders respectively. SPS also recognises that rehabilitation takes place in the day-today interactions between officers and inmates. Hence, officers on the ground are trained on the 7 Habits of Effective Captains of Lives to use in their daily interactions with inmates. For example, officers are encouraged to engage and motivate offenders purposefully, which in turn positively influences their motivation for change.

Training on SPS's '7 Habits' was rolled out across organization to align our staff's values with SPS's rehabilitation efforts

In 2017, a new gender responsive women's prison was born with increased efforts to incorporate gender responsive approaches in the rehabilitation techniques and daily operations at Changi Women's Prison

To enhance rehabilitation efforts, SPS developed the Catch It, Check It, Change It, Cast It (4C) programme to incorporate gender-responsive approaches for rehabilitation. Additionally, SPS conducted the Gender-Responsive Intelligence-Driven Dynamic Security Integrated Training to enhance officers' knowledge and ability to handle gender-responsive needs at Institution A4, leading to a new gender-responsive women's prison.

Overall, SPS ensures accuracy and timeliness to facilitate inmates' rehabilitation and reintegration outcomes, and to protect public safety through having assessment and rehabilitation practices guided by research and evidence-informed principles.

References

Andrews, D. A., & Bonta, J. (2010). The psychology of criminal conduct (5th ed.). Providence, NJ: Matthew Bender & Company, Inc.

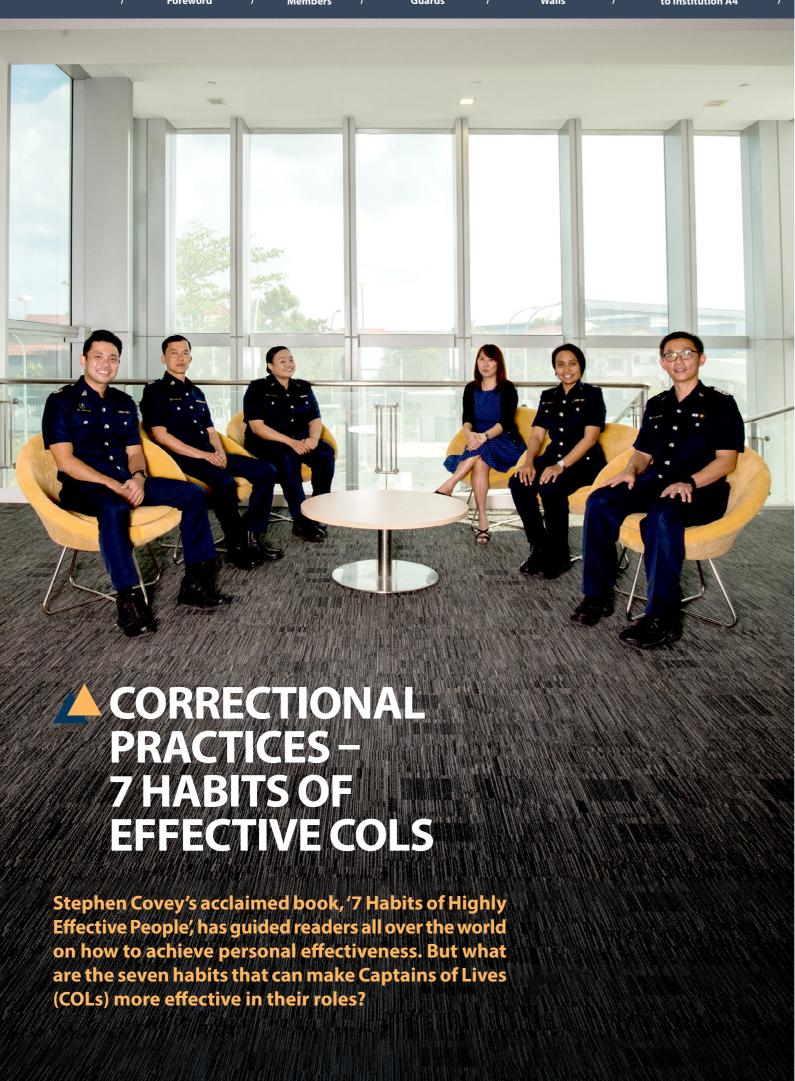

Brown, J., & Singh, J.P. (2014). Forensic Risk Assessments: A Beginner's Guide. Archives of Forensic Psychology, 1 (1), 49-59.

Synergies Through Community Partnerships Directorate Prison Without Prison Without Changi Women's Prison Accurate Assessment, Correctional The Yellow Ribbon Right Rehabilitation

▲ DEVELOPING STAFF, DEVELOPING ORGANISATION

Following the unveiling of the new Vision, In a 'Prison Without Guards', officers have Mission, and Core Values in recent years, Singapore Prison Service (SPS) recognised the development of staff competencies as a key driving force to scale even greater heights. Previously, there were six Jailcraft Principles, introduced in 2009, to guide COLs in inmate management. Over the years, with leaner manpower, more complex inmate profiles and greater public scrutiny; what is required of COLs has also evolved.

moved from being prison wardens to an expanded role as correctional officers. This is paired with the vision of a 'Prison Without Walls', where officers have expanded spheres of influence in the community. COLs work closely with external stakeholders and key partners to better equip inmates for reintegration with society, leading to reduced recidivism.

Underpinned by the Core Values of Synergy, Vigilance, Integrity and Care, these are the seven habits that SPS officers need to internalise to become effective COLs. The shift from 'principles' to 'habits' highlights the need for all COLs to put these actions into practice daily and in every aspect of their work.

Directorate Prison Without Prison Without Changi Women's Prison Accurate Assessment, Correctional Synergies Through The Yellow Ribbon Community Partnerships to Institution A4 Right Rehabilitation Project

▲ LIFE HACK: HOW TO MAKE NEW HABITS

We all know how difficult it is to break a bad understanding of what each habit entails year resolution – be it a commitment to finally taking up that self-enrichment class. In rolling out the '7 Habits of Effective COLs', we took multiple approaches to ease COLs into learning and forming the new habits.

and collaterals, such as pocket-sized cards, handbooks, posters and magnets, to COLs as visual prompts to help them remember the '7 Habits'.

habits would not necessarily translate into behavioural transformation. We becoming a true habit. needed to help COLs develop a deeper habit, form a new habit, or achieve a new for them to translate theory into action. We did this through e-Learning modules, stop procrastinating, eat more healthily, or demonstration videos and quizzes to consolidate learning.

The final step was to put their understanding to practice. COLs underwent relevant skills training during their regular ongoing training To start, we widely circulated messages sessions. The '7 Habits' served as a guide during the staff coaching sessions to highlight actual behaviours that are consistent with the '7 Habits'. This was complemented with role plays and case studies to help solidify the learning. These exercises ensured that However, merely remembering the the skills will be part of COLs's econd nature when dealing with inmates on the ground,

Take Charge and

Be Firm and Fair

(Integrity)

consistency

appropriately

effectively

Be in Control (Vigilance)

incidents and daily operations

· Enforce reward and punishment with

Use Reward-and-Punishment system

Offenders Purposefully (Care)

· Build a collaborative relationship with offenders

Enhance offenders' motivation towards change

• Treat offenders with humanity

Engage and Motivate

Exercise moral courage

 Process offenders' requests with consistency • Manage misunderstanding/conflicts

• Enforce rules and regulations effectively

• Have a confident presence in front of offenders

• Make sound operational decisions to manage

▲ IS THAT IT? I WANT MORE!

While practicing these '7 Habits' will serve to maintain a safe and secure prison environment, inspire change in inmates, and help ex-offenders desist from crime and drugs; there will always be more difficult cases that may require specialised knowledge and a deeper understanding of relevant skillsets. We have also identified a series of external trainings to further develop the competencies of COLs.

Like how the Jailcraft Competencies have helped to frame SPS's coaching and outline what was required of all COLs, the '7 Habits of Effective COLs' now incorporates the renewed vision, mission, and values. It will prepare COLs for the future, driving SPS to greater heights.

- Ensure security of structures and systems
- · Conduct proper searches
- · Ensure security and tactical coverage
- Be tactically ready
- Maintain sensitivity to the risk of manipulation
- · Respond appropriately to contingencies, including medical emergencies

Understand Offenders (Vigilance and Care)

- · Possess knowledge of offenders' subculture
- Tap on available resources to better understand
- Understand offenders' risks, needs, and responsivity

Be a Positive Influence (Integrity and Care)

- Demonstrate personal effectiveness
- · Guide offenders to acquire pro-social skills

Collaborate with Stakeholders (Synergy)

- Link offenders to appropriate resources
- Engage in collaborative efforts with other stakeholders

Synergies Through Community Partnerships Changi Women's Prison Accurate Assessment, Right Rehabilitation

In March 2017, SPS embarked on a partnership Ali* and his family were beneficiaries of this programme. Ali was the sole breadwinner of with AMP to run the Development and Rehabilitation Programme (DRP) for 150 his family of eight and was holding four jobs inmates in the Drug Rehabilitation Centre. before he was arrested. He thought that he The DRP aims to provide a structured and could stay alert to work longer hours by holistic reintegration programme. Ms Siti consuming drugs. Through the programme, Nurshafiqah binte Abdul Kadir, 26, is one he learnt important life-skills, financial of the case officers on this programme.

Shafigah follows the inmates over a period of nurturing the family's intergenerational of 12 to 18 months, starting from a Personal Development Programme during the incare phase that focusses on topics such as life-skills, financial literacy, parenting and family management. During this phase, Shafigah and her team would engage the inmates' families, raising awareness of the importance of their support in the successful rehabilitation journey of their loved ones. Families in need would be assisted through economic empowerment and socio-educational programmes.

directly with an offender, she was apprehensive and unsure of what to expect. "Initially, I was anxious and uneasy as I was about to meet a group of people of varied backgrounds and profiles. However, through the workshops and individual counselling sessions, I realised that I had much to learn from them as well. It gives me a sense of satisfaction to be able to help them and their families, like Ali's, and witness first-hand how they are able to change for the better. I hope I can continue to guide and assure them that they are able to turn their lives around," said Shafigah.

planning, and the availability of social assistance his family could tap on. As part resilience, Shafigah worked out the children's caregiving arrangements and assisted Ali's wife in seeking employment.

When Ali was released in August 2017,

Shafigah continued to address his ^{*} Name has been changed to protect the inmate's identity.